Richard Hildreth, the Historian

We noticed recently the death of [illegible] Hildreth, the eminent historian, late U. S. Consul at Trieste. The following is a sketch of his [illegible] works from the New York [illegible]

Mr. Hildreth has been in feeble health for [illegible] and the announcement of his decease [illegible] long been expected by his friends [illegible] but the bereavement will be felt [illegible] As a historian and journalist, and one of the foremost advocates of political and social progress in the world, he was known and admired wherever the English language is read, and will be sincerely mourned far beyond the circle of his intimate personal friends.

He was born in Deerfield, Mass., June [illegible] 180[illegible]. His father was a clergyman [illegible] connected with the Congregationalists, but independent in character and opinion, and widely known for the fearless eclecticism of doctrinal views and his thorough [illegible] Unitarian relations. These admirable traits were transmitted to his gifted son, who [illegible] throughout the whole of his long and laborious career the same disregard of mere convention and form, and the same indignant [illegible] every phase of moral and political [illegible]

At an early age Mr. Hildreth entered Harvard University, where he graduated with high honors in 1826. He immediately commenced the study of law at Newburyport. His literary tastes led him to contribute, while pursuing his legal studies, a series of papers to a magazine [illegible] Boston, at that time edited by Mrs. Sarah J. Hale. To these succeeded other articles which appeared in the Boston Magazine, then conducted by the elder Willis, and in Joseph T. Buckingham's New England Magazine. These youthful [illegible] display correct taste, a very extensive field of information and many of the peculiar traits of thought and opinion that characterize the literary labors of his maturer years. He was admitted to the bar in 1830, and after a brief term of practice in Newburyport transferred his residence to Boston. There his unusual abilities as a thinker and writer attracted the notice of the publishers of the Boston Atlas, then just established, and his services as editor of that paper were secured. Two years afterward ill health compelled him to resign that position, and he sought relaxation and restoration in a Southern climate, passing about a year and a half on a plantation in Florida. Even while seeking that mental repose which was necessary to his complete recovery, Mr. Hildreth found it impossible to repress his literary activity. In this retirement he wrote his anti-slavery work Archy Moore, which was republished and favorably received in England, and which was recast and again published in this country in 1852 under the title of the White Slave. He resumed his connection with the Boston Atlas in 1838, as Washington correspondent, and in the following year furnished a series of articles to that paper relative to the movement, then not generally suspected, for the separation of Texas from Mexico and its annexation to the United States.

Mr. Hildreth's second literary undertaking was a translation from the French of the Theory of Legislation. His next publication was a History of Banks, an argument for the use of free banking with security to bill holders, now adopted in New York and several other States. It was first published about the time of the great financial disasters of 1837, and passed to a second edition in 1840.

In the latter part of 1838, Mr. Hildreth resumed his editorial post as an ardent and vigorous advocate of Gen. W. H. Harrison's claims to the Presidency. He wrote a biography of his favorite candidate, and in the columns of the Atlas strongly urged his nomination and contributed largely toward his election. He then for a time abandoned journalism, and in 1840 published, under the title of Despotism in America, a volume on the political, economical and social aspects of slavery, to which, in the edition of 1854, was appended a chapter on the legal basis of slavery. In this vigorous and earnest work, the author aimed to present an accurate portrait of slavery under all its aspects, and to picture its tendency to debase and demoralize society. Often bitterly personal, dogmatic and caustic, his uprightness, earnestness, and thorough devotion to the noblest principles of human advancement, commended the book to every unprejudiced reader. No believer in the divine right of walloping niggers ever derived much comfort from its pages.

Mr. Hildreth also employed his vigorous pen in religious controversy, and his pamphlets, including a letter to Prof. Andrews Norton, of Cambridge, on "Miracles," were contributions to a long and exciting theological discussion in Massachusetts.

But the great work of his life, and the one by which he is most widely known, is his History of the United States, in six volumes, the first three of which were issued in New York, in 1849. The period embraced in this history extends from the discovery of the continent of America to the organization of the government under the Federal Constitution; the next three volumes extending from that period till the end of the sixteenth Congress, in 1821. The whole work was revised by the author and published in a new edition in 18[illegible]. His purpose in preparing this work was, in his own words, to portray the founders of the American nation "unwrapped again no fine spun cloaks of excuses and apology, without stilts, buskins, tinsel or bedizenment, in their own proper person, often rude, hard, narrow, superstitious and mistaken, but always earnest, downright, manly and sincere." This narrative is plain and lucid, but wanting in fervor, graphic power and picturesque description. A literal and Quaker-like severity characterizes almost every page.

The series of atrocious outrages in Kansas, and the imprisonment of Passmore Williamson by order of Judge Kane, prompted Mr. Hildreth to write a book entitled "Atrocious Judges." This was a volume compiled from Lord Campbell's "Lives of the Chief Justices of England," and has the title of "Atrocious Judges: Lives of Judges infamous as Tools of Tyrants and Instruments of Oppression."

The following is a catalogue of Mr. Hildreth's works in the order of their publication:

1. The White Slave, or Memoirs of Archy Moore.
2. Banks, Banking and Paper Currencies.
3. Life of Gen. William Henry Harrison.
4. Bentham's Theory of Legislation.
5. Despotism in America. An Inquiry into the Nature, Results and Legal Basis of the Slaveholding System of the United States.
6. Theory of Morals.
7. History of the United States of America.
8. Theory of Politics. An Inquiry into the Foundation of Governments and the Causes and Progress of Political Revolutions.
9. Japan as it Was and Is.
10. Atrocious Judges.

His last editorial engagement was upon the New York Tribune. He was appointed Consul at Trieste by President Lincoln, and held that post at the time of his death. It was hoped at the time of his appointment, that a foreign residence would conduce to his restoration, but the powers of nature were already too far exhausted, and he grew worse from month to month until he passed away. He was 58 years of age.

In him the country has lost one of the profoundest thinkers and ablest writers of the age, a man who contributed in a very large degree to the education of the people in the noblest and purest theories and principles of political science.

Free Missouri.—The New York [illegible] remarks upon the new Constitution of Missouri that it is tainted with injustice in that it excludes colored citizens from the ballot box [illegible] in all other respects it is sound in principle [illegible] makes Missouri forever a free State [illegible] border ruffianism and treason to death [illegible] the State in material advantages [illegible] in the which [illegible] prosperity and intellectual [illegible] religious progress. The redemption of [illegible] from slavery after [illegible] one of the most striking [illegible] in all history of that wonderful [illegible] by which the counsels [illegible] for good. The haughty slaveholders [illegible] State a few years ago felt sure of success and [illegible] Kansas [illegible] they started a [illegible] which has worked the overthrow of the [illegible] system not only in Missouri [illegible] the country and overwhelmed themselves [illegible] as terrible as that which befell Pharaoh [illegible] his host. The depths have covered them [illegible] sank to the bottom as a stone. Thy right hand, O Lord, is become glorious in power [illegible] hand, O Lord, hath dashed in pieces the enemy.

Improvements at Willamette Falls

The active energy now being displayed in the matter of making improvements around the falls of Oregon City is not surpassed and perhaps not equaled by that we can see at any other point in Oregon. The Willamette falls have always been a very serious obstruction in the way of the valley trade. A few years ago there existed at Linn City a set of works consisting of a breakwater and large warehouses with an inclined plane arrangements so that freight could be passed over the falls without much difficulty or delay. After these works were consumed by fire, goods and produce were for some time hauled in wagons around the falls. This process was slow, expensive and uncertain; and after a time a horse railroad was built whereby the work was rendered vastly more easy and expeditious. This railroad is still in successful operation. But the People's Transportation Company are now building a system of works at the falls which is destined, we think, to prove far better adapted to overcoming the obstruction which exist there, than anything ever before constructed. The enterprise they are showing will be very creditable to any community or State. The works are of great magnitude. They are to consist of a breakwater extending from the brink of the falls on the Oregon City side, almost to Canemah, and describing a curve so as to form an ample basin for steamboats to enter, and of a warehouse one hundred and fifty feet in length by fifty in width, with an inclined plane reaching to the river below, the whole so constructed as to afford the best means for passing freight either way. The breakwater is being built in the best manner and of the most substantial materials. It is composed of a complete system of heavy framework, so constructed as to offer the most effectual resistance to the floods of winter. Each separate part of the framework is fastened to the rock with three ponderous bolts of iron. Over this work heavy planking is placed, and the whole so arranged that the greater the weight of water the more secure does the structure become. The dam across the chute near the place where the "Island Mill" once stood, is built of solid hewn timber, laid horizontally, and arranged in the form of an arch with its outer angles projecting up stream. It will be absolutely impossible for this part of the work to move from its position. The greater part of the breakwater will be completed this fall.

The Company have a large force at work removing the rock from a channel which is to lead into the basin. It is expected that this part of the work together with the breakwater as far as the latter is to be extended now, will be completed within a few weeks. At present about one hundred and twenty men are at work under the direction of the Company. When the dam is finished the water will stand in the basin at an average depth of about five feet. This will be sufficient for all the purposes of boating. Freight will be raised and lowered at the ware house on cars drawn by water power on the inclined plane above mentioned. The whole work will be of greater use to the valley generally, than any other lately undertaken. The Company are expending about $100,000 at the falls this year. Next summer they purpose to extend the breakwater still further up stream, and complete the work they now have in progress.

The P. T. Company deserve to succeed in the work in which they are investing so large an amount of capital. When their project is completed there will be far better facilities for passing freight over the falls than any which have heretofore existed.

The Woolen Factory of Oregon City deserves a more extended description than we are able to give it at this time. Therefore, we shall not make particular mention of it now, but shall recur to the subject again.

The Amiable General Lee.—A Virginian writes the following as the reason why General Lee made application to President Johnson for a pardon:

Had the General considered his own feelings alone, he would have died sooner than humble himself and a just cause by a seeming admission that it was wrong. His application was one more proof of his love for his country. There were thousands of high toned young men in the South who meditated expatriating themselves, and who when asked why they did not seek for a pardon replied that until General Lee had done so they would not. After a long struggle with his inclinations, believing that these young men ought to be saved to the country whose future they were so well qualified to adorn, and, by participating in the rights of citizenship, to guide and shape, the General had done violence to his own feelings and made the request.

We think it is to be regretted that "the General" did not "consider his own feelings" and refuse to apply for pardon. It would have been decidedly better for the country every way, had the high-toned young men "this correspondent speaks of, been permitted to expatriate themselves. It is probable, however, that this talk about contemplated expatriation is all gammon. The war has taught us to regard the "high toned men of the South" as about the most contemptible of all self styled "gentlemen" ever heard of. The idea that they would leave their country for their country's good, would presume in them a far higher degree of virtue than they really possess. Lee applied for pardon because he knew he was guilty, just what any other criminal would have done. Sensible people will never be imposed upon again by this skimble-scamble stuff about the "high toned chivalrous" character of the late rebellious slave owners.

Rebels in Mexico.—David S. Terry, Dan Showalter, Col. Kennedy, Duncan Beaumont and other noted rebels, formerly of California, are in Mazatlan. Ridgeley Greathouse is also there.—State Rights Democrat.

What do you mean by talking in this style about "distinguished Democrats?" Do you not know that according to your doctrine none who lately tried to disrupt the Government are guilty of treason and are therefore not rebels? In your own words "by what authority do you presume to declare these persons rebels before they are tried and convicted?" Be consistent, O Confederate Democrat of Albany, and be charitable too. You know you are longing to receive your "misguided brothers" back into the bosom of your party. Now don't stultify yourself nor dise[illegible] your beautiful theory of "State rights" by admitting that these "Democrats" are rebels. It would not be consistent, nor just, nor magnanimous [illegible]. Therefore we beseech you refrain.

Sudden Death.—We learn that one of the men who has been employed on the P. T. Co's breakwater at Oregon City died very suddenly on last Sunday morning. The deceased was formerly from Cleveland, (some say Steubenville) Ohio, afterwards resided at Stockton, California, and has a family at one of the former places. He had been ailing some during the past week, but not (it was supposed) seriously. He came to the breakfast table, attempted to swallow something, strangled and expired in about two minutes. The name of the unfortunate man is George [illegible]. He is an entire stranger at Oregon City. He had about seventy dollars on his person, which will be made use of by the Coroner who has charge of the body to give him decent burial.

The new Academy building at Forest Grove, we learn, is completed. The erection of a large new College structure is begun at that place. This building will be finished outwardly the present fall and will be completed throughout next year.

[DISPATCHES TO THE OREGONIAN.]

DATES TO SEPTEMBER 1[illegible]

The South Carolina Election

New York, Sept. 1[illegible].—The Herald's Charleston correspondent says: That the Union Delegates to the State Convention have been defeated in Charleston. The same seems to be the result throughout the State, though the returns are yet very limited. Wade Hampton, [illegible] Secessionist and Nullifier, [illegible] ... [illegible] ... President. The [illegible] passed off very quietly. No soldiers were allowed in the vicinity of the polling places. [illegible] are very much pleased with the result, claiming that they are the [illegible] ... war record [illegible] a virtual surrender of the State to the Secessionists.

Governor Perry has issued a proclamation [illegible] the result of a conference with Generals Meade and Gillmore, directing the restoration of the authority of the [illegible] civil officers. All legal [illegible] ... Provost Marshal [illegible]. It was [illegible] that [illegible] ... until [illegible] from Washington no further action will be taken by the judiciary authorities.

North Carolina and Mississippi.

New York, Sept. [illegible].—The Tribune's Raleigh correspondent says the [illegible] whites will vote on the 14th. Notwithstanding they have [illegible] crops in the State, they [illegible] give [illegible]. There are [illegible] people in Raleigh receiving rations. They are [illegible] themselves. A good many whites have sold their rations given them by Government or fattened their hogs upon them.

The Times special of the 12th says: To-day a delegation of Mississippians consisting of the late rebel Generals Tupper and Falkener and Rev. Dr. Murdock, of Columbus, Miss., visited Gen. Howard of the Freedmen's Bureau. Dr. Murdock made a speech in which he stated that when the bureau was first organized the people of the South had [illegible] their minds fully [illegible] the status of the negro as a man [illegible] ... [illegible] change in the sentiments of the southern people on the subject. He was gratified now to say that as far as his knowledge extended they universally accepted the consequences of the war and firmly and sincerely acknowledged the freedom of the colored race which had resulted from it. He believed that the negro should be emancipated, and it would be better for the South to have a class of intelligent labor than to have them growing up in ignorance.

General Howard expressed himself much pleased at the remarks of Dr. Murdock and the delegation remained some time in friendly conversation relative to the operations of the Bureau.

Colored Troops Mustered Out.

New York, Sept. [illegible].—The Secretary of War has issued instructions to the commanding Generals of the Departments of North Carolina, Virginia, Florida, Texas, Louisiana and Arkansas directing the immediate muster out of the service of all organizations of colored troops which were enlisted in Northern States and are now serving in their respective commands. This is a muster out of the entire organization, including the additions made by recruiting from other sources. Another order directs the muster out of 1,000 white troops in the Department of Arkansas. Major General Augur has also been ordered to reduce the volunteer force in his command to 6,000.

The Rebel Indians Want to Treat.

Fort Smith, Sept. 12.—In the council to-day the Seminoles presented the petition showing their desire to treat with the United States. The Creeks made a lengthy statement relative to their course in the war, saying that the names of their chiefs affixed to the treaties with the rebels were used without their knowledge. The same was true with regard to the Indians of the plains. Gov. Pellinger with the chief of the Choctaws arrived to-day. He says the other set of delegates will be here on Wednesday or Thursday.

The Liberals of Mexico Desponding.

New York, Sept. 1[illegible].—The Commercial's Washington special says: The accounts from Mexico, regarding the prospects of the Republic, are becoming more gloomy. The Mexicans who still adhere to the Republic, have become discouraged on hearing of the reduction of Sherman's army in Texas, and are making the best terms they can with Maximilian, and without there is an immediate supply of men and money from the United States the Liberals must abandon the cause. The Administration will neither suffer the neutrality laws to be violated, nor will it go to war for an idea.

Virginia Matters.

New York, New York 12.—A Scotch agent now here has secured a large tract of land in Virginia, where a colony of Scotch emigrants will settle in November or December.

The World's Washington dispatch says it is thought the military force will soon be withdrawn from Virginia, and the power to maintain order placed in the hands of militia, the same as in the case of Mississippi.

Slavery Abolished in the Indian Territory.

St. Louis, Sept. 12.—The plan proposed to the Indians in council at Fort Smith further stipulates that slavery must be abolished, and the freedmen have the right of being incorporated into the tribes on an equal footing with other members thereof.

Great Fires in Maine.

Bangor, Me., Sept. 12.—Fires are raging in the woods in every part of this county, particularly in Carmel, Hermon, the old towns of [illegible], Bradley, Milford, Orono and Holden. Much valuable property is being destroyed and the tanneries are in danger. The Bangor and Milford Railroad cars find it difficult to get through the fires.

The New Virginia Constitution—The Troops to be Withdrawn from the South.

Richmond, Sept. 1[illegible].—A clause in the Virginia Constitution excludes all who had aided and participated in or sympathized with the rebellion from voting or holding office. There seems to be no doubt that this disability will be removed.

The Herald says Gen. Meade's account of the condition of North Carolina and Virginia is very satisfactory. The people and permanent citizens everywhere are disposed to accept frankly the issue of the war and to resume their former relations with the National Government. Arrangements have been made by him under authority from the President for the gradual withdrawal of all Federal troops and the resumption of civil law. The people acquiesce in submitting all disputes between whites and blacks to the provost courts.

Naval Affairs.

New York, Sept. 1[illegible].—The Herald's [illegible] says [illegible] ... the Navy [illegible] ... at the close of the war. Only three iron clads will be retained [illegible] at New Orleans, two at [illegible]. The rest will be laid up in [illegible] below Philadelphia.

Railroad Collision—Specie Claimed by Richmond Banks.

Philadelphia, Sept. 1[illegible].—A New York special says Adams Express [illegible] from Washington and the train [illegible] ... Camden and Amboy Railroad kill [illegible] only one passenger.

The Post's Washington special says the officers of the Richmond Banks have preferred a claim for the specie captured from Davis and party brought to Washington.

Union Convention in Massachusetts.

Worcester, Mass., Sept. 1[illegible].—The Republican State Convention [illegible] nominated Colonel A. H. Bullock for Governor and William Claflin for Lieut. Governor.

Maine Election—Increased Union Majority.

Augusta, Me., Sept. 1[illegible].—The [illegible] this morning contains the official returns from 361 towns, comprising more than [illegible] of the vote of the State. Cony has [illegible] majority against [illegible] in 1864. The [illegible] will fall short [illegible].

Pardons in Alabama.

New York, Sept. 1[illegible].—The Herald's Washington special says [illegible] applications for pardon from Alabama are [illegible]. The State is now on a footing with other States. C. C. Clay [illegible] ... with $100,000 in gold captured [illegible] with Jeff. Davis when [illegible].

Register Appointed.

Washington, Sept. 1[illegible].—[illegible] ... Register of the Land Office at Santa Fe, New Mexico, [illegible] ... Secretary Chase.

The Fenians [illegible] ... Secretary Seward. The English Minister [illegible] ... documents and statements which have been sent to the [illegible] Government and which it is [illegible] ... given the subject of [illegible] attention.

The Chinese trouble has been greatly magnified. It is not expected that the State Department will sustain the demand of our Minister for the surrender of General Burgevine, he having denaturalized himself by becoming a Chinese citizen.

The World's Vera Cruz correspondent of the [illegible] says the Imperialists are [illegible] ... by Marshal Bazaine [illegible] ... It seems the capital of [illegible] ... by Maximilian [illegible] ... the opposition [illegible] ... which the republic [illegible] at [illegible].

South Carolina Convention.

Washington, Sept. 1[illegible].—The [illegible] says that a telegram has been received [illegible] ... South Carolina, stating that the State Convention assembled yesterday with [illegible] ... [illegible] ... the table after the reading of [illegible] ... was read which strongly [illegible] the President's [illegible].

The Indian Council.

Fort Smith, Sept. [illegible].—The treaty of amity and peace was submitted to the Council; they asked until to-morrow to give [illegible] ... Col. [illegible] of Arkansas has [illegible] large [illegible] from the [illegible] here. The Senecas presented a paper regarding their relations with the rebellion.

Wreck of a Steamer in the Gulf.

New Orleans, Sept. [illegible].—[illegible] ... Light House [illegible] ... Galveston. The ship and the [illegible] were totally lost. [illegible] ... has swept over the Gulf of Mexico. No vessels had arrived at New Orleans within the [illegible].

Rebels in Mexico.

The [illegible] City of Mexico correspondent says that there have at present in that city about [illegible] rebel officers of different grades. Among them are Generals Price, Magruder, Shelby, Walker and King. They associate with the American citizens here who have maintained [illegible] attitude with the utmost cordiality. No bitter denunciation of the Yankees is heard. Many schemes of emigration are proposed by them. [illegible] ... most notable of the [illegible] ... [illegible] ... Magruder. It is confidently asserted that this will induce a large number, particularly of those who have served under these leaders, to emigrate from the United States, notwithstanding the persistent refusal of the government of the United States to recognize the Imperial government of Maximilian as the only government [illegible] existing in the civilized portions of Mexico. This government having carefully maintained [illegible] neutrality during the late war [illegible] ... not the least of which [illegible] ... [illegible] Southerners and also might appear to be preparing for any future emergency by inducing them to come.

California News.

San Francisco, Sept. 18.—The [illegible] for Panama this morning carried [illegible] passengers, including the crew of the Jamestown, numbering 100, who have been transferred to the service at that place. She also carried over two millions in treasure, an unusually large shipment.

By orders from Gen. McDowell's headquarters the military guard on board the Panama steamers will hereafter be discontinued.

A general court martial is assembled at the Presidio this morning for the trial of such cases as may be brought before it.

Late advices from the East announce that the U. S. steam frigate Powhatan is ordered to the Pacific Department to relieve the Lancaster which is ordered home to be repaired at Norfolk.

Admiral Pearson will transfer his flag from the Lancaster to the Powhatan on the arrival of the latter at Panama and remain in command of the Pacific squadron.

The gun boats Mohongo, [illegible] and Nyack are ordered to join the Pacific squadron. The iron clad Monadnock is also ordered to this coast.

Capt. Percival Drayton, Chief of the Bureau of Navigation, died at Washington on the 4th of August.

The Markets.

There were $8,000 legal tenders sold at 72[illegible]. A private dispatch from New York dated the 15th inst., quotes gold at 143 and sterling exchange at 109¼, which after a slight improvement.

MEDICAL NOTICE.

DR. N. DAVIDSOHN,

RESPECTFULLY INFORMS THE PUBLIC OF Portland and vicinity of his recent arrival in the city, with the intention of taking up a permanent residence at this progressive place. Dr. D., late Physician and Surgeon in the United States army, is an honorary graduate, a practical and experienced Physician, Surgeon and Accoucheur, and in virtue of his theoretical and practical knowledge claims public trust and confidence. He requests suffering humanity afflicted with chronic or acute disorders, to apply to him immediately, that the medical skill he professes to possess may be made apparent and beneficial to the public.

The Doctor will confidentially receive and respond to any application forwarded in writing.

His fees are usually moderate, and will be reduced to individual circumstances.

Dr. D. also respectfully informs the poorer class of humanity that his office will be open for the reception of poor sufferers only every Monday and Thursday, between the hours of 9 and 11½ A. M. Sincere medical advice will be granted to them gratis, and faithful attendance to obstetrical cases whenever required, Free of all Charges.

He speaks the English, French and German languages fluently.

Particular attention paid to FEMALE DISORDERS.

His Office is at the

OUR SCHOOLS.—The schools of this city present at this time a curious phenomena. The public school is crowded to more than its fullest extent. Over four hundred young [illegible] crowd its aisles, crowd its seats here, crowd each other, preventing the teachers, however diligent and careful, from affording the necessary aid and instruction to the budding brains of this overgrown crowd. Think of four teachers attending four hundred scholars in one building, where there is every diversity of intellect and [illegible], with no possibility of [illegible] four hundred little [illegible] feet, all uneasy and restless, and two hundred busy tongues desirous of talking to their neighbors, [illegible], and imagine the absolute impossibility of study in such a room. If a horse racer had a trotter and wished to make good time, he would give him plenty of good fresh air, and especially he would not put him in the pestilential atmosphere produced by the breath of [illegible] beings. If he did, he would lose his race. But it is only a boy or a girl, and they can stand it. The Academy in this city has an able corps of teachers as there is in this State. Mr. Royce has only twenty-nine in his room; Miss Eddie has only twelve and Miss [illegible] twenty-one. That the teachers of the public school are very excellent we all know, but lack of the capacity. We venture to assert that if Mr. Frazier's devoting his time is worth one dollar to the scholar where there are one hundred scholars, it is worth ten dollars where there are only forty—that a child will learn ten times as much at the Academy. So there is time and opportunity to teach them. Besides there is philosophy and [illegible] at the Academy which they have not at the public school. We venture to say that by far the best and most forward scholars in this city can be found in the Academy—not because of better teachers, but because there are fewer scholars and better opportunity. There are, this 15th day of September, fifteen hundred children between four and twenty years of age in this city. Not less than one hundred and fifty ought to be in the [illegible] Academy, and when there are more the [illegible] will enlarge. No less number will sustain the [illegible]. The terms of the school are lower by half than any other school of like grade on [illegible] coast. But the school must be run on the use of at least fifty scholars in order to barely live, and needs seventy-five to live decently well. There ought to be a school in this city second to none on the Pacific coast, and there ought to be while people fail to patronize it because of the small fee for pupilage.

[illegible] OF THE FENIANS.—A large and enthusiastic [illegible] assembled at the hall of the Fenian Guard last [illegible]. The meeting was organized by electing W. J. [illegible]man, and J. H. Egan Secretary. The chairman [illegible] the crowded audience in a few appropriate [illegible], briefly stating the object of the meeting. He [illegible] followed by Mr. Egan, when Mr. S. J. McCormick [illegible] and delivered a stirring and patriotic address [illegible] the object and aim of the Brotherhood, alluding [illegible] to the condition of affairs in the [illegible] land, and filled with hope for the deliverance of Ireland from the tyranny of her oppressors. He was [illegible] in the course of his remarks by rounds of [illegible]. Upon the conclusion of Mr. McCormick's remarks Hon. Amory Holbrook was presented and made a [illegible] speech, in sympathy for the cause in which so many [illegible] were assembled before him. The [illegible] to a downtrodden people. He was followed by Mr. [illegible], who produced some fine poetical [illegible] to the occasion, and by Mr. Shaughnessy [illegible] speeches. The hall was handsomely decorated [illegible] of flags, etc., in which the Green Flag [illegible] and emblem of Free America bore a conspicuous part. [illegible] of $350 was taken to the furtherance of the projects for which the meeting was called.

THE OLD FLAG.—The first battle in which the American [illegible] fought under a flag symbolizing their cause, [illegible] of Bunker Hill, when the Yankees bore a red [illegible], with the motto, "Come, if you dare!" The red [illegible] on that memorable occasion, did dare to come but [illegible]. On the 14th of June, 1777, the Continental [illegible] then in its prime of influence and power, resolved that the flag of the United States be thirteen [illegible] alternate red and white, and that the union be [illegible] white on a blue field, representing a new [illegible]. This resolution was made public on the [illegible]ber, and the new flag was unfurled over the [illegible] for the first time at the surrender of Burgoyne [illegible] the battle of Saratoga. Other stars have [illegible] on the Fourth of July following the admission [illegible] into the Union. On last Fourth a new law of [illegible] regulating the flag went into effect. All flags [illegible] with the number of stars according to the States in the Union, in the shape of one large [illegible] field. The star [illegible] the State of Nevada placed in the field of blue on last Fourth. Talk [illegible] out the stars on "Old Glory;" not one is [illegible] yet, but on the contrary they keep coming. [illegible] name of God and Liberty let them come. [illegible], Colorado, Idaho and Montana will all be [illegible] to the household of Uncle Sam before 1870.

OREGON CITY.—Our stay-at-home citizens may not be aware that Oregon City is now become a place of brisk growing enterprise. Without attempting to enter [illegible] details of its rapid growth, we may say that in the future it will become a prosperous business point. [illegible] location for industrial pursuits seems to be [illegible], and shrewd energy is preparing various [illegible] to turn all its advantages to account. [illegible] and splendid brick stores besides frame buildings [illegible] now in a forward stage of completion on one of [illegible] in the State, and the hum of busy labor [illegible] from dawn to dark—even above the sullen [illegible] of her picturesque falls. We wish our sister the [illegible], which the enterprise of her people [illegible] secure.

[illegible] PATTON.—This beautiful steamer, whose [illegible] a short time since, is rapidly approaching [illegible] for service. She presents already a neat and [illegible], sitting upon the water like a duck. [illegible] is now on board, and will be subjected to test [illegible] during the coming week. Her freight [illegible], and we understand that the fine passenger [illegible] of the Onward will be transferred to the new boat, and thus complete an [illegible] to the enterprise of her projectors, [illegible] to the public. Canemah is a brisk place [illegible] steamers lay there yesterday morning [illegible] up river at one time on arrival of the Senator.

[illegible].—This beautiful boat is expected to [illegible] trip on the upper Willamette, in about [illegible]. Her boiler was tested at Canemah yesterday [illegible], and stood a pressure of 165 lbs. without [illegible] strain. Her engineer, Mr. E. B. [illegible], [illegible] carrying 110 pounds of steam, when [illegible]. This boat is put up in a substantial manner, [illegible] of Capt. Apperson, who will command her. [illegible] length is 128 feet 6 inches, beam 23 feet, [illegible] feet 2 inches, 140 tons measurement. She [illegible] bulk-heads in hull—is well finished, [illegible] accommodate 60 passengers with [illegible]. She has two 14-inch cylinders, 4 feet [illegible] boiler was made by one of the best [illegible] furnished by U. S. [illegible], and is A 1 in all respects.

[illegible] Messrs. [illegible] & Moron, pro[illegible] in the matter of supplying [illegible] this section and the mining re[illegible] their card to the public this [illegible]. There exists at this time a [illegible] and [illegible] City should wish [illegible] successful in their undertaking [illegible] leave Walla Walla on the first day [illegible] by way of Lewiston.

[illegible] Cascade yesterday took fo[illegible] Age which had some fifty head of [illegible] families accompanying them, who are [illegible] homes east of the Cascade range of mountains. [illegible] the evening the same steamer brought as [illegible] from a long pilgrimage across the continent.

THE LIVE YANKEE.—This once favorite craft is now discharging cargo at the foot of Yamhill street. She has [illegible] thoroughly overhauled for the trade of Oregon, [illegible], and is rated A 1½ by the Board [illegible]. The Live Yankee is a clipper, light [illegible] a very good model. Capt. John Wiggin appears [illegible] at home on board of her.

THE TROT.—The match between Challenge and Boston, [illegible] in three, trotting to harness in heats, was won by the former—time 3:17, and 3:20. The race is said to have been a very pretty one. A scrub race between an [illegible] and a Cayuse, won by the former, completed the day's sporting.

NEW SLOOP.—A new sloop of rather fine proportions, lately built in the upper Ward of this city, was scudding about in the river yesterday, making a trial trip under [illegible] sail. She is for Gray's Harbor, and the [illegible] region.

STREET REPAIRS.—The work of street improvements was [illegible] yesterday in various parts of the city. We hope to see pleasant weather until Front street is finished to Salmon, from the wing dam near the Penitentiary.

[illegible].—Hon. J. E. [illegible] will deliver another lecture on Temperance this evening at the Methodist Church. The public are invited to attend.

THE SYDNEY HERALD ON THE MURDER OF PRESIDENT LINCOLN.—The news of Mr. Lincoln's assassination will be heard everywhere with execration. The British Parliament only did justice to its representative character, in expressing what must be the feelings of every Englishman, of whatever party he may belong. The Queen, a widow herself, sent with touching gracefulness a letter of condolence to the widow of the murdered great Magistrate of the West. That he should be hurried [illegible] from the South, maddened by defeat, should think they did their country service by assassinating the President of the North is [illegible] capable of [illegible] a moment [illegible]. The [illegible] people has been justified, but Mr. Lincoln [illegible] expression of the sentiment of the North. It has been [illegible] publican grounds the war was very justifiable, but Mr. Lincoln himself was never likely to discuss or to determine that point. He was [illegible] to preserve the Union. But [illegible] the public belonging [illegible] is to falsify facts. No great ruler possessing such amount of power ever acted in such a crisis with more regard to humane considerations. When he took the office he was surrounded by spies and conspirators [illegible] he and his were [illegible] with personal insults. Had he been a bad tempered man he would have been provoked into bitter retaliation. But it was only with the greatest difficulty that the war party could wring from him the severe measures which the early federal defeats and the want of military success seemed to justify. A polished man he [illegible], none of the terms he certainly was not, but he had no need to be [illegible] and exalted to the rough though [illegible] station of circumstances, and his strong common sense and his sterling honesty steadied him in the dangers and difficulties of an unexampled crisis, when ability of [illegible] with less innate strength of character, might have made an ignominious failure. That in the course of his arduous station he made many mistakes, is only to say that in the midst of special perplexities he was not superhuman; but the errors, such as they were, were those of the head and not of the heart. Slow, timid, hesitating, he was [illegible], but cool and [illegible] never a man in a million, lifted from his position as to the height of his dignity, would have shown less disposition towards arbitrary power. The liberties of the people were safe in his hands. He had no ambition in the [illegible], and would never have turned the arms of the Republic against itself.

HOW ANSWERED.—The Confederate Democrat asks a string of questions. We give three as a sample:

Can a person be reasonably held to be guilty of an offense, until after trial and conviction be had?

When, where, and by what constituted authority, have the so-called "disloyal" people of the South been tried and found guilty?

Those questions, considering the connection in which they are put, are truly formidable. They can be best answered by asking two more:

Is it any offence to make war upon our Government, override its laws, steal its property and take the lives of thousands of our citizens as those lately in arms against lawful authority have done?

Does the Confederate Democrat know that there has been any resistance to the laws of the country throughout the South for five years past, and does it in short believe there has been any war or rebellion? If this be conceded, we should like to be informed whether any further proof is needed that the people of the South, or a large share of them are guilty. And another question. If the Democrat is unable to decide whether there has been any rebellion, would it not assist its judgment a little to reflect that persons with arms in their hands have surrendered to the Government by the hundred thousand, and that all of their leaders are now acknowledging their guilt by applying for pardon?

THE MAIL.—Two or three days ago the Chamber of Commerce of San Francisco moved a set of resolutions to the Post Office Department touching our daily mail. We think it would be well for our citizens to imitate this example. Earnest petitions from all parts of the country could not be wholly disregarded at Washington. At any rate it would not be amiss to move in the matter.

A black man was recently married to a white woman in New London, Connecticut.

Age of progress. This is moral and God loving New England.—Review.

A Democratic Vice-President was once married to a black woman and their saffrony progeny are still multiplying. Of that time we may say "Age of progress. Moral and God-loving Kentucky."

W. L. Adams, Esq., lately reappointed U. S. Collector of Customs at Astoria, has executed bonds in the required sum of $50,000, and has entered upon the duties of his office.

THEY SEE IT AT LAST.—The Richmond Republic says: "Slavery is dead—secession is dead—hostility to the Union is dead, and the principal leaders of the secession movement are exceedingly dead; and the people of the South want only real peace and protection of civil government. This is the best thing from that source since the suppression.

SOZODONT.—An article that is at once a tooth preserver and breath purifier, and yet so pleasant and convenient to use its exceeding popularity does not surprise any one. Time has fully established the fact that the Sozodont possesses these excellent qualities in an eminent degree. It has legitimately acquired the right to a position upon every toilet table.

Dr. Hostetter's Stomach Bitters.—It renovates, purifies and strengthens the system, and aids the stomach in the performance of its functions. It is a sovereign specific for imparting strength, vigor and tone to the system, and possessing the curative powers for all diseases arising from a disordered stomach. In the most severe cases of cramps, diarrhea and weakness in the stomach, the "Bitters" have been rigidly tested, and always with the greatest success.—Sold by all Druggists and dealers everywhere. ap12

Brandreth's Vegetable Pills.—This medicine, of enduring efficacy, is justly prized as a corrector of all disorders of the stomach and bowels, the common symptoms of which are costiveness, spasms, loss of appetite, sick headache, giddiness, sense of bloating after meals, dizziness of the eyes, drowsiness and cramping in the stomach and bowels. These symptoms being suffered to remain, a torpid state of the liver supervenes, and all the horrors of dyspepsia are experienced. Every function of the frame is to a certain extent prostrated; but a little perseverance in the use of BRANDRETH'S PILLS will soon restore the system from this state of misery. Two or three doses will convince the afflicted of their salutary influence. The stomach will readily regain its strength, a healthy action of the liver will soon take place, and instead of listlessness, heat, pain and jaundiced appearance, activity, strength and renewed health will be the blessed results. Brandreth's Pills are sold at 25 cents a box, enveloped in full directions. Purchase none unless any private Government stamp is on the box. See upon it "B. Brandreth" in white letters.

INCLUDING EVEN CONSUMPTION.

There is scarcely one individual in the community who wholly escapes, during a season, from some one, however slightly developed, of the above symptoms—a neglect of which might lead to the last named, and most to be dreaded disease in the whole catalogue. The power of "medicinal gum" of the Wild Cherry Tree over this class of complaints is well known; so great is the good it has performed, and so great the popularity it has acquired.

In this preparation, besides the virtues of the Cherry, there are commingled with it other ingredients of like value, thus increasing its value ten fold, and forming a Remedy whose power to soothe, to heal, to relieve, and to cure disease, exists in no other medicine yet discovered.

The unequalled success that has attended the application of this medicine in all cases of

The Decline and Fall of the Southern Confederacy

From the New York Tribune.

The stranger who, in July, 1864, strolled through the streets of the "Confederate" Capital must have been forcibly impressed with the signs of security and confidence which at that time presented themselves on every hand: in the faces of loafing citizens, bright with genuine Hospitality; in the plucky demeanor of soldiers, invalid or on leave; in the hearty greetings of old cronies, refugees from "the Neck" or "the Valley"; in the gay gaddings of girls; in the tumult [illegible] and lounging of hotels; in the [illegible] attendance of thronged churches; in the [illegible] ings and comings of couriers betwen the War Department and the front, whose possible tidings of triumph or disaster, of lines flanked or broken, works stormed or mines exploded, excited no extraordinary remark; in the placid spattings on the steps of the "Executive office" of here and there some more illustrious hero of the hour [illegible] from the front; most of all, in the rapturous beanings and belle-ings of Capital square on Band days, when dapper-gray jackets and jaunty "rebel" hats desperately took no thought of the morrow, what they should eat, or wherewithal they should be clothed. There were no curses on the air then, no murder in the hearts of Richmond folk. Fire-eaters cooled their monstrous swallows in Pizzini's ices at four dollars a saucer, and the bitter tongues of inflammatory damsels sweetened themselves in Antoni's jellies at five dollars a glass, payable some time after the ratification of peace. For Mars Robert knew what he was about, and everything looked lovely, though the Indian-olence goose did hang a little out of reach. To be sure Sherman was rapidly advancing upon Richmond by way of the Sandwich Islands and the Straits of Magellan, but Jeff Davis would check him with strategy, and two battalions of penguins, at Cape St. John. To be sure Grant still kept up his pertinacious poundings, and "piled in the men" in prodigal holocausts wherever Lee made catacombs; but there were no more than magnificent demonstrations of the inexhaustibleness of Yankee resources in flesh, blood and Dutchmen, powder, projectiles and generals, bounties, obstinacy and nigger infatuation, which indiscriminately, in wild, drunken waste were flung against the adamantine army of Lee; "while in the valley and in Maryland the day of Jubal E had come," and ransomed refugees were returning home!

Nor were the grounds for this almost unanimous elation altogether unsubstantial. The valley was "free again till next time." The enemy had precipitately retired before the pretentious advance of Early, whose scouts now beat the country from the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad to Staunton. Martinsburg that Mercurio of border towns, which, out of the fickleness of its fortunes, might well have cried, "a plague on both your houses!" once more saluted the rebel flag, and owned that gray was your only wear. Ladies, who perversely affected the unfashionable blue, shrank in loyal seclusion behind indignant window-blinds and impatiently waited for the tap of their favorite drum, while gentlemen of the same color of thinking made haste to put the Potomac between them and the Blue Ridge, whose uniform was, to their imagination, as treacherous as a guerrilla's disguise. Winchester, Berryville, Front Royal, Strasburg, Woodstock, Edinburg, Mt. Jackson, Luray, Newmarket, Harrisonburg, Mt. Crawford, Port Republic and Staunton were all in Dixie once more, and rebel damsels of that region conspired with lovers on crutches and cousins in splints [Wanted—an Albert Smith, to write the natural history of the Virginia Cousin, an animal that inhabits window curtains at twilight, and feeds on blushing damsels of the First Families, whom it decoys with pensive confidences, and ensnares in cunning traps of privileged consanguinity], to contrive patriotic excursions to fields consecrated to epic renown by the exploits of an Ashby or a Jackson, a Sheetes or a Mosby, a Blackford or a Gilmor. Relieved for the nonce from the exciting duties of the Underground Mail, and in the rare enjoyment of a half-holiday from the ever shifting stations of the Grape-vine Telegraph, they flirted with Peace under their barring tree, nor man nor Jessie Scout made them afraid; for were not these the fresh hoof-prints of Mosby in the glen, and did not McNeil's camp-fires still smoulder by yonder spring? Best of all, were not Early, and Breckinridge, and Gordon, and Wharton, and Ramseur even now knocking at the gates of Washington, and defending Richmond with the consternation of Pennsylvania?

Through Wilmington, as through a straw, the Confederacy still sucked sympathy; bacon, hooped skirts, percussion caps, ladies' gaiters, gray cloth, photographic albums, gold lace, baby linen, fulminating powder, the London Times, copper wire, fancy note paper, chloroform, spy-glasses, artificial flowers, crape, quinine, gum-elastic, suspenders, opera music, and Hope, Main and Broad streets and Capitol Square, on Band days, bore evidence, as ample as the crinoline that made them gorgeous, that the blockade-running system, good for an average of two cargoes a week, and losing but one vessel in twenty, was equal to any reasonable requirements of war, wooing, wedding, or death.

The soul-shocking signal of that dreadful bell tolling for a midnight raid in the suburbs no longer startled ingenious exempts from their begrudged [illegible]; no longer did visions of reeking swords and ravenous torches, and all the fell fury of riot, rapine and ravishment, make mad the dreams of Treasury clerks, by grace or gender safe from the clutch of the enrolling officer. For the pretty programmes of the Kilpatricks and the Dahlgrens were played out, Wade Hampton's ubiquitous riders picketed every approach to the city, and scouted every negro hut and cowpen [illegible] a Yankee guide [illegible], while every Sunday at St. Paul's church, the faint-hearted few might read a sermon of trust and patience in the calm, gentle, genuine face of the man, of whom that shrewd student of human character, our murdered President, said in his kindly way, "Lee never does a cruel thing and never says a false one"—a face one glimpse of which was a seven night's anodyne for the most sensitive nerves in Richmond.

Nevertheless, this soothing atmosphere of success and security, confidence and abundance, was disturbed by the breath of "croakers"—"spies, [illegible], traitors, half-Yankees, ill-wishers, mischief-makers, Union [illegible]," so defined in that standard lexicon of the Dixie language, the Last Dictionary. [illegible] they who could not see the [illegible] of a [illegible] success in the qualities of brutality, [illegible], hypocrisy, selfishness, [illegible], truculence [illegible], and apple-jack-iness, which happily compounded, [illegible] in the character of that latest Lib[illegible] of the Valley, Jubal Early—a General who was never up in time, a "Liberator who set nothing free but his own prisoners and the negroes of his [illegible], who on the very fields of Stonewall Jackson's early fame, with the bones of the "Stonewall Brigade" beneath his feet and the proud ruins of the Stonewall column around him, lost all that illustrious soldier had won, and mocked the glory of his victories with the shame of the "worst whipped men in Dixie," who, in August, suffered the enemy with a force double that of his own and splendidly equipped, to coax him from Cedar Creek to the Potomac—as far as possible from his own base of supplies and as near as possible to theirs—through a country beforagoed by both sides and blasted by Hunter, and thought he was pursuing them because they went before; who, after his almost comic rout of September and October, endeavored to save the reputation of his canteen by sacrificing that of his army; who, having utterly disheartened five of the ablest and bravest Generals in the rebel service and profoundly disgusted every gentleman who had the misfortune to come in contact with him, fled into notorious oblivion in the prime of life, leaving behind him this glorious record that the army called him "that good old drinker" and General Lee "that bad old man." These croakers were they who, with great respect for the intellect and earnestness of Jefferson Davis, could not appreciate the illustrious statesmanship which would sacrifice a clear principle of policy, not to say of necessity, involving the very life of a nation, to considerations of personal pride or pig-headedness; which would starve into surrender the bravest [illegible] the world, rather than feed them with beef and bacon that was bought with cotton, because in the illustrious Statesmanship aforesaid had laid it down that the enemy must and should be kept out of Southern cotton to the last—not seeing (short-sighted [illegible]) that if the egg were so extremely golden the enemy might think it would pay to fight for the possession of the hen that laid it.

These, too, were the croakers who, cordially participating in Davis' lively admiration for the peculiar temperament which rendered General Andrew Jackson so steadfast a friend and so hearty a hater, nevertheless regretted that in emulating "Old Hickory's" bitterness of preference or prejudice he did not to an equal degree partake of his sagacity. Davis' tenacious attachment to the fortunes of Bragg and Pemberton and his zeal for their advancement was a refreshing exhibition of what Mrs. Skewton would call heart—in a word, of selfishness and dissimulation which would have been beyond all praise if Bragg had not happened to be the most accomplished bungler and Pemberton the most demoralized and dispersed cavalier that ever wore stars on his collar. On the other hand, "the President's implacable hostility to Joe Johnston and Beauregard would have been a sublime manifestation of wisdom and duty if both these Generals had not happened to command the unanimous admiration and confidence of the army and the people, and was [illegible] old [illegible] have treated them with [illegible] as if they had been his benefactors or his best friends.

These croakers were they who presumed to think it would have been in better taste if the President of the Confederacy had been on civil terms with his Vice President—the most unpopular man with the most popular—who boldly declared their conviction that it would have been more prudent if he had not by implication stigmatized the Congress as a Convention of fools and cowards until he had made sure of their votes and their votes for his pet projects; who ventured, in all humble deference, to suggest that it would have appeared more amiable if, as to grave measures touching the lives and properties of citizens, he had now and then indulged a mass meeting in the fond delusion that he entertained no less respect for their honest opinions than for those of his body servant, as black as the boots he polished. True, Davis was no demagogue, but, "Oh! why did you kick me down stairs?" Everybody knew Davis was a Democrat and "that might excuse them"—but so might be the King of the Dahomey, after a full repast of tender virgin, souced with baby [illegible].

> She[illegible] [illegible] was pleas'd when she [illegible]
> It did [illegible] [illegible] what [illegible] that
> The [illegible] of the [illegible] were the less [illegible]
> But [illegible]

Suddenly an endemic of sour sightedness broke out among these rascal croakers, whereby the most precious blessings, if they ventured to be comparatively remote, became invisible to them. Davis' speeches in Georgia, in which he defended his [illegible] against the assaults of his political foes, he betrayed to the enemy the weakness of the army and uncovered the nakedness of the land, might all be in the regular way of Executive dignity, wisdom and patriotism, but they did not see it. The masterly strategy developed in our military operations in the West, which was to result in the entrenchment of Tennessee, the reclaiming of Kentucky, the chastisement of Ohio, and the relief of Virginia, would no doubt be very lovely to behold; but, as yet, they could not see it. The surrender, one by one, of every port on the ocean and the Gulf was no doubt a magnificent stroke of military policy, but they could not see it. A Secretary of War charging Government forty dollars a bushel for wheat must be munificence, but alas! they could not see it. With holding from a penniless and crippled cavalryman the money lawfully due him for his own horse killed in battle and requiring him to steal another in a given time from the first farmer he could find who might happen to have one left, might be an admirable plan to render the cavalryman a devoted soldier and the farmer a cheerful taxpayer, but the croakers could not see it. Dragging a Government clerk from his desk to Camp Lee once a week might be an infallible method of training him in experience and efficiency—but they couldn't see it. Throwing a sick soldier, with one leg and nothing to eat, into Castle Thunder, for practicing on his crutches without a pass, and respectfully saluting a robust rosy blackleg, picking his teeth before the Spotswood Hotel after a $20 dinner with a forged pass in his pocket, might be fair play—but they did not see it. A $1 loaf of soggy brown bread might be as big as your hat and as sweet as you had a right to expect—but they could not see it. Getting $33 a month by way of salary, and paying $1[illegible] a month for bare board and lodging, exclusive of clothes washing, medical attendance, etc., etc., might be making both ends meet; but they could not quite see it, even in August, 1864; in March 1865 this phenomenon was even more invisible. Driving decent young girls into prostitution for the means of sheltering their aged and broken-hearted parents, and of appeasing their ravenous little brothers and sisters, might be—well, God Almighty could not see it. The affairs of the Confederacy might be prolifically prosperous, victory might be perching on her standard, and freedom, from her mountain height, might be unfurling her banner to the air—but the American Eagle could not see it.

Southern Self Discipline.—We observe that in one or two Southern States a great repugnance is expressed to having "Yankees" coming to settle there. Lands have been refused to purchasers from the North, and companies devoted to internal improvements, which included Northern stockholders, have been denied charters. It is given out that Yankee capital nor Yankee management is wanted in certain communities. This is all right enough in a constitutional point of view, whatever it may be in the light of good judgment and common sense. The General Government and the Northern people will do with such prejudices as the English humorist proposed to do with his enemies, that is, "let them alone severely." If Virginia, for instance, is bent upon excluding as much as possible from her borders Northern labor capital and enterprise, they should flow around her into other States, and she should be allowed the privilege, in the process of years of learning for herself just how much she has gained or lost by her policy.

And so in regard to many other errors, in Northern estimation, to which the South may yet cling, in spite of ample opportunities for reform. They are not things for us to worry about. They primarily concern the South, and if she will not learn them from friendly recommendation, she must be content to learn them from hard experience. What the Government of the Union has to do in the matter of Southern reconstruction is, to insist upon these things that are demanded by the Constitution and by the essential safety of the republic. Beyond that lies the jurisdiction of local authority, and it is for our interest to respect it and maintain it intact, alike when it hedges errors and when it guards the principles of infinite value, because without such immunity, free institutions would be no bar to the worst tyranny and to eventual anarchy. Moral influences may well be extended everywhere, but when they fail, experience and self discipline must be left to do their work. It would seem that the South has had enough lessons in the "hard school" of late, but if it shall appear that she has not, let her have more, for she pays the tuition.—Boston Journal.

The Testimony Against Wirtz.—The Government has already within easy reach numerous competent witnesses against Captain Wirtz, who will prove directly that he caused the murder in more than half a dozen cases of unoffending prisoners; that his conduct was invariably of the most brutal and inhuman character; that he forced the guards to shoot prisoners without warning, and in one case, for a slight misdemeanor, caused two young men among his prisoners to be hanged without trial or preparation, within a few hours. It will be shown, beyond reasonable question, that Wirtz was a most willing and zealous assistant in administering that system of physical and mental torture which peopled 13,000 Union graves with tenants from the Andersonville pen! And we are asked to suspend judgment in the face of facts like these, which are as public and well known as the fact that Jeff. Davis the principal and Wirtz the agent are in custody.

The Tomato as Food.—A good medical authority ascribes to the tomato the following very important medical qualities:

1. That the tomato is one of the most powerful aperients of the liver and other organs, where calomel is indicated. It is one of the most effective and least harmful medical agents known to the profession.

2. That a chemical extract will be obtained from it that will supersede the use of calomel in the cure of disease.

3. That he has successfully treated diarrhea with this article alone.

4. That when used as an article of diet it is almost sovereign for dyspepsia and indigestion.

5. That it should be constantly used for daily food. Either cooked or raw or in the form of catsup, it is the most healthy article now in use.

A Texas Editor's Opinion.—The Pleck Pepper, a Texan newspaper (the New Orleans [illegible]) is edited by a [illegible] man [illegible] clergyman, who says:

The colored man and the white man cannot live together in this country. They must and will, at [illegible] part, and [illegible] Congress [illegible] will give them a place for them [illegible] for as it was with Abraham and Lot, so it is with us. [illegible] for our race a [illegible] The [illegible] will [illegible] Our [illegible] in this country [illegible] will be a rare thing [illegible] man in the country. Like the [illegible] are [illegible] to become extinct [illegible]

[illegible] The [illegible] Prisoner.—A special Washington dispatch of August 11th, says: [illegible] Welch, of [illegible] Jeff. Davis, has been released [illegible] by order of President Johnson, [illegible] this family [illegible] that as [illegible] was a rebel officer [illegible] with their [illegible] and [illegible] [illegible] Delaware.

A [illegible] farmer in Rutherford county, Virginia, recently said to [illegible] soldiers who [illegible] "I [illegible] of [illegible] for poultry. I've always been opposed to this rebellion; but if you [illegible] pay but twenty-five cents apiece for chickens when the Confederates used to give me a dollar, why, I'm done with your Government."

Passing Away.—In Macon county, Tennessee, John Brannon, a soldier of the Revolution, who had reached the age of 100 years last December, died on the 4th of July, 1865.

Andrew Westervelt, a [illegible] man of Shasta, California, returned home [illegible] on the 24th. He started East in 1862, the sum of $[illegible] being raised for his passage to Washington. In [illegible] less than thirty days from his [illegible] says the Courier, Andy was a member of Berdan's Sharpshooters, and in time to participate in Burnside's failure at Fredericksburg, and Hooker's failure at Chancellorsville, in Meade's grand [illegible] at Gettysburg, and fought in every battle of that army except that of Deep Bottom, where he was in a hospital from a wound received at Cold Harbor, to the surrender of Lee. His discharge shows that he enlisted [illegible] 1862, and was discharged at Washington [illegible]

An orator we have heard of, in appealing to "the bone and sinew," said: "My friends, I am proud to see around me to-night the hardy yeomanry of the land [illegible] and the [illegible] of the country, and well may I [illegible] fellow citizens [illegible] the happiest days of my youth were spent in the [illegible] as [illegible] of the soil. If I may [illegible] to use a figurative expression, my friend, I may say I was raised [illegible] "A pumpkin-y thunder!" exclaimed an uneducated chap just in front.

Tax on Dividends.—[illegible] the tax of 5 per cent. upon dividends [illegible] by the Commissioner of Internal Revenue [illegible] although the surplus from which a dividend may be declared was acquired prior to [illegible] the Revenue act, yet if the same is [illegible] after the law went into effect it is taxable. The rule is that the tax must be withheld from the entire dividend whenever it becomes due and payable, without regard to when the profits were acquired.

Jeff. Davis, it is said, is to be tried for the [illegible] of thousands of poor Union prisoners who miserably perished of hunger, cold and heat and exposure at Andersonville, in Libby and elsewhere, and to [illegible] their families.

A terrible record is that contained in a Philadelphia paper, which has eight columns of its space closely printed in small type of the names of Pennsylvania soldiers who died in the rebel prison pens at Andersonville.

Every foreigner who has honorably served in the army one year is entitled to be at once naturalized without previously declaring his intentions.

Judge Ghelson of Mississippi thinks the war has settled two things: 1. Slavery is dead. 2. States cannot secede. [illegible]

The largest canal in the world is one in China which passes two thousand miles, and to forty-one cities. It was commenced in the tenth century.

Notice

Is hereby given that the assessment made by Ordinance No. 20 for the improvement of [illegible] street, as provided by Ordinance No. [illegible] on each of the following described lots and parts of lots lying and abutting on [illegible] street, between the south line of W[illegible] street and the center of Jefferson street [illegible] and payable to the City Treasurer in U. S. gold or silver coin, and if the assessment is not paid within five days from the final publication of this notice, the Council will order a warrant for the collection of the same. Published by order of the Common Council.

H. R. MEIKER,
Auditor and Clerk of the City of Portland.
Portland, Sept. 14th, 186[illegible]

Sheriff's Sale.

By virtue of an Execution and foreclosure of mortgage, issued out of the Circuit Court for the County of Multnomah and State of Oregon, and to me directed, in favor of [illegible] and against [illegible] Van Rensselaer and [illegible] McIntire, I will expose at public sale in front of the Court House door in Multnomah county, on Saturday the [illegible] day of October, A. D. 186[illegible], between the hours of 9 o'clock A. M. and 4 P. "CONSTITUTION WATER,"

THE ONLY REMEDY FOR DISEASES OF THE

BLADDER, KIDNEYS,

Gravel, Dropsical Swellings,

GENITAL DEBILITY, ETC.

The astonishing success which has attended this invaluable medicine renders it [illegible] No language can convey an adequate idea of the immediate and almost miraculous change which it occasions in the debilitated and shattered system. In fact it stands unrivalled as a remedy for the permanent cure of the maladies above mentioned and also

DIABETES, IMPOTENCY,
LOSS OF MUSCULAR ENERGY,
PHYSICAL PROSTRATION,
INDIGESTION,
SEMINAL WEAKNESS,
GLEET, FLUOR ALBUS,

And in every disease in any way connected with the disorder or decay of the PROCREATIVE FUNCTIONS. Persons about to marry, if conscious of any weakness, should take the

CONSTITUTION WATER.

Whether broken down by excess, weak by nature, or impaired by sickness, the unstrung and relaxed organization is at once braced, revivified and built up. We may thus celebrated medicine be called the

MEDICAL WONDER.

The stooping, trembling victim of depression and debility becomes a new man; he stands erect, he moves with a firm step [illegible], which was previously sunk in gloom [illegible] becomes bright and active; he goes forth regenerated, conscious of new vigor. The medicine reaches the CONSTITUTION itself, and restores it to its normal condition.

IRRITATION OF THE NECK OF THE BLADDER, INFLAMMATION OF THE KIDNEYS, AND
CATARRH OF THE BLADDER;
STRANGUARY AND BURNING, OR PAINFUL URINATING,
CALCULUS, GRAVEL,
BRICK DUST DEPOSIT, AND MUCOUS
OR MILKY DISCHARGES AFTER URINATING

For those diseases it is truly a sovereign remedy, and too much cannot be said in its praise. A single dose has been known to relieve the most urgent symptoms. TRY IT in these cases, and you will ever give praise to

CONSTITUTION WATER.

Males or Females,

Are you troubled with that distressing pain in the small of the back, and through your hips? CONSTITUTION WATER will relieve you like magic.

ALLEN'S LUNG BALSAM!

The Remedy for Curing

CONSUMPTION, COUGHS, COLDS,

Asthma, Croup,

Diseases of the Throat, Bronchitis, Pains and Oppression of the Chest and Lungs, Difficult Breathing and all the Diseases of the Pulmonary Organs.

Its action is expectorant, alterative, sudorific, sedative, diaphoretic and diuretic, which renders it one of the most valuable remedies known for curing diseases of the lungs. It excites expectoration, and causes the lungs to throw off the phlegm or mucus; CHANGES THE SECRETIONS AND PURIFIES THE BLOOD; heals the irritated parts; gives strength to the digestive organs; brings the liver to its proper action, and imparts strength to the whole system. Such is the immediate and satisfactory effect that it is WARRANTED TO BREAK UP THE MOST DISTRESSING COUGH IN A FEW HOURS TIME, if not of too long standing. IT IS WARRANTED to give entire satisfaction, even in the MOST CONFIRMED CASES OF CONSUMPTION. IT IS WARRANTED NOT to produce costiveness (which is the case with most remedies) or affect the head, as it contains no Opium in any form. IT IS WARRANTED TO BE PERFECTLY HARMLESS to the most delicate child, although it is an active and powerful remedy for restoring the system. THERE IS NO REAL NECESSITY FOR SO MANY DEATHS BY CONSUMPTION, when ALLEN'S LUNG BALSAM will prevent it if only taken in time.

Sold by all Druggists. Price $1 per bottle.
